FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Of interest to editors and journalists covering: Books, WWII vets, and colorful local characters

Author brings story of local WWII survivor, veteran, and pilot to life

Good Luck Publishing announces the release of “Private Lucky,” the adventurous true story of Orange County resident Hank Gillebaard.”

Irvine, CA, November 1, 2015: When Irvine-based author Melissa Guzzetta heard the story Hank Gillebaard told about his life, she knew it was a story to be shared with the world.

Born in the U.S., but raised in Holland during the Nazi Occupation, Gillebaard's life weaves a tale of survival and adventure as he makes his way through a world gone mad. He is forced to go into hiding during the occupation, despite the fact that he is not Jewish.

After the war, he enlists in the American Army in Germany hoping to achieve his dream of becoming an 'ace pilot'. His inability to speak English results in hilarious missteps at every turn, and frustration when he learns the American Army has stopped pilot training after the war. How will he ever reach his goal?

Undaunted by the setbacks, Private Hank learns what it means to be American, arriving in America broke but determined to pursue his lofty goals in a manner only this very lucky Dutch-American would even think of trying, flying by the seat of his pants to some of the highest levels of aviation.

One review describes the target reader well. “For those who like a little [WWII] history with daring adventure.” It is also a story of interest to aviation enthusiasts.
